The bride (Anne Gillis) wore white and carried a stylish nosegay of early blooms and radishes. The floral/vegetable motif was picked up in the gowns worn by her attendants (Peggy Moore, Joanne Plack and Kathy Nistor). If you're dying to find out why, don't miss the Eastern Michigan University Players production of "An Italian Straw Hat" which opens March 26 for a five-day run at the Quirk Theater. Recommended for anyone who knows how to laugh.

Award candidates in; Choices unpredictable

By BOB THOMAS
 Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — With studied solemnity, the voters of the Academy of Motion into the Academy theater daily and nightly to view the candidates for the 41st annual awards.

Some Academy members gorge themselves on four long movies in an afternoon and evening, trying to catch up on the year's product. There is no way to gauge how the voters feel, because they never applaud and seldom laugh at the films they see.

The results of their viewing won't be known until the Price, Waterhouse man hands over the sealed envelopes on the stage of the Los Angeles Music Center on the evening of April 14.

All signs point to an air of unpredictability. The nominations portended that Hollywood is still buzzing with questions about unexpected results of the nominations. Among them:

Why wasn't Mia Farrow nominated as best actress for "Rosemary's Baby"? (Does Frank Sinatra have that many friends among the voters?)

If "Rachel, Rachel" won nominations as best picture and for Joanne Woodward as best actress, why was Paul Newman overlooked for best director?

Why did the voters give "Funny Girl" eight nominations but none for its director, William Wyler? (Or should Barbra Streisand have been listed as co-director?)

How could Jack Albertson be listed for best supporting actor when he played the most important male role in three-character "The Subject Was Roses"?

How could the voters have overlooked Walter Matthau's classic performance in "The Odd Couple"? (Did Alan Bates have a better press campaign for "The Fixer"?)

Didn't Lynn Carlin play the lead in "Faces"? (Of course she did, but she is up for best supporting actress.)

Why did "Star!" win seven nominations, but not one in a major category? (If the parts were so outstanding, why wasn't the whole?)

How could the voters give four nominations to "Romeo and Juliet," including best picture and best direction, then ignore the author? (Couldn't he afford a press agent?)

If daydreams came true . . .

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Things sure would be different if everybody's daydreams came true.

For example, it might be a far better world, or at least a more interesting one, if—People got pensions at birth but had to settle down and go to work at 65.

All mortgages were self-liquidating.

Anyone who hogged the same parking space more than two weeks in a row had to pay an inheritance tax on it.

Cats barked and dogs mewed.

Comedians who told jokes about how dumb their mothers-in-law were would be exiled to Timbuktu with their mothers-in-law.

The year's heaviest snowfall always fell on the 15th of July.

Money was as common as credit.

Children went into hibernation at 12 and awoke, yawning, at 20—thus escaping teenage problems altogether.

Every major city had at least five strolling German bands which walked through cheerful sounds.

Professional football had a 52-week season and Congress a two-week one.

Caviar tasted as good as hash and was twice as cheap.

Winners of beauty contests were appointed baseball umpires and performed their chores in grass skirts.

National political campaigns were permitted to be conducted only during eclipses of the sun.

Nickel beer and the five-cent cup of coffee made a comeback.

Business firms gave automatic merit raises to employees the first and 15th of every other months.

Downtown city streets were given over to the pedestrians and autos restricted to the sidewalks.

Anyone too tired to build his own love nest would be given one free by the government.

Slums were inhabited only by the people who really deserved to live in them.

When commercials on a television program exceeded a normal sound level the station that sent them out would explode into 10,000 pieces.

The Joneses had to worry about keeping up with us.

It would be illegal for a manufacturer to turn out any product unless it was guaranteed to last at least 10 years after it was paid for.

The more you ate the slimmer you got.

Yep, anyone can dream up a better world. But making the dream come true is what takes the doing.

Harvey up for Oscar On second film try

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

Anthony Harvey's telephone rang so often as he tried taking his ease beside the Beverly Hills Hotel pool that he finally told the operator to hold the calls. The gist of the messages, most of them from total strangers: "Tony, baby, I've got a great script for ya ..."

Harvey answered each call politely, vowing to read the scripts when they were sent to him.

"I've got to take a house at the beach to get away from the telephone and try to do some reading," said the English-born director. "It's the only way I'll be able to make a decision about the next picture."

Harvey's last picture — the second he ever directed — was "The Lion in Winter," and that's the reason he has been inundated by more than a hundred scripts. His accomplishment was signaled by his winning of the Directors Guild award for best picture of 1968. Since the Guild winner has coincided with the Academy Award for best director during the past 15 years, he qualifies as frontrunner for the Oscar.

Like Lewis Milestone, Robert Wise and many other noted directors, Harvey was a film editor, the man who puts together the finished movie.

Harvey completed "The Lion in Winter" in 14 weeks at a cost of $3 million. He admitted that Hepburn and O'Toole clashed both off camera and on, adding: "But they always made up immediately afterward. Fortunately both have great sense of humor."

***

What's next for the 38-year-old director?

"I'd like to do a musical, perhaps in Hollywood. Not a big Broadway production, because most of those often end up neither fish nor fowl."

"It seems to me an exciting new musical could be made, using contemporary composers like Jim Webb or Burt Bacharach. That's the sort of thing I would like to do, so I won't get typed in historical dramas."

Cows go blind

AUCKLAND (A P) — Curiosity had blinded a number of New Zealand cows. They had stood too long watching welders joining steel pipes which will carry natural gas across the rich Taranaki dairy lands of the North Island.

The minister of electricity, Thomas Shand, said later: "Nobody seemed to appreciate that Taranaki dairy cows and, for that matter, all other herds of cows along the pipeline are endowed with a considerable measure of curiosity."

"Nobody explained to them that it is dangerous to watch a welder at work unless you wear dark glasses."

One inventor decided that if you can't stop the cows from watching, you might as well equip them for the job. He has begun making welding glasses for them.

Amateur photogs err In flash exposures

By IRVING DESFOR
 AP Newsfeatures

Visits to my neighborhood camera store give me the opportunity to meet average photo fans, to hear their questions and to become acquainted with a few of their problems.

Recently a snapshotter revealed his idea of what the "B" — (Bulb)—exposure setting on his camera stood for and I wonder if other casual camera users have the same misconception.

He was buying a small accessory flash unit for his 35mm camera and the dealer was explaining its use.

"Set your camera on 'M' setting for flashbulbs, not the 'X' setting for electronic flash. And since you have a focal plane shutter, you must set your shutter speed slow enough to permit the complete light from the flashbulb to come through the open lens," he advised.

"Yes," said the camera owner, "I must set it on 'B.'" "No, not on 'B,'" replied the dealer. "Set it on 1-25th or 1-30th or check your camera instruction book."

"But 'B' means 'Bulb Exposure,' doesn't it?" the man pointed out. "And I'm using a bulb ... a flashbulb."

"You're right — and also wrong, or at least it's a case of mistaken identity," the dealer said. "B" does mean 'Bulb Exposure' but it refers to the oldtime photographer's rubbery bulb used to squeeze out a time exposure. 'B' today means only 'time exposure' and has nothing to do with using flashbulbs. When the camera is set on 'B' and the shutter release is pressed, the lens aperture opens and remains open until the finger pressure is released. Then the lens closes."

Later, in discussing the matter with the dealer, we agreed that flash pictures can be taken with the shutter setting on 'B' but the results may vary. Depending on how long the photographer keeps his finger pressure on the release and on how much prevailing or ambient light is present in the scene, the result may be ghost images or a degraded picture due to prolonged exposure registering a secondary image on the film. A shutter speed of 1-25th or 1-30th second limits the flash exposure to the time when the maximum brilliance of the flash coincides with the full opening of the lens.

Generally speaking, range-finder cameras have both "X" and "M" flash contact settings while focal plane reflex cameras have only one flash contact for both electronic flash and flashbulb shooting. Use of the wrong flash contact or of the wrong shutter speed will result in blanks ... mistakes that have been experienced by even the best of photographers. It calls for careful checking each and every time flash pictures are taken: Is the camera on "X" for electronic flash? ... or on "M" for flashbulbs? ... or on 1-25th or 1-30th for a focal plane camera?

Another cause of flash failures ... probably the most frequent one that plagues average photo fans ... can be blamed on batteries. The simplest remedy is to have spare fresh batteries on hand at all times. And before any important picture-taking event, replace your batteries and also roughen up all the contact points to eliminate any chance of an oxidized surface preventing good electrical contact ... and check your camera settings again!

Merrill's formula is logic

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Nathaniel Merrill, 40, only American-born resident stage director at the Metropolitan Opera, looks over a Met schedule for the coming three weeks and notes that, except for three days on which "Peter Grimes" is being performed, each day features an opera staged by Nathaniel Merrill.

Merrill, from Newton, Mass., joined the Met in 1955 as an assistant director; became a director in 1957. Most seasons he has staged one new production at the Met; this season he has two.

Looking back as some of his productions, Merrill recalls that for his first one, "L'Elisir d'Amore," he wanted the quack love potion salesman to arrive in a balloon which would float out from the stage and hover over the audience. So he went to Macy's, because it uses balloons in its Thanksgiving parade, and learned that the balloon would have to be too big to get through the stage opening in order to contain enough gas to float.

So he settled for a "candy box balloon" that flies in on wires and lands on stage.

For the end of "Samson et Dalila," Merrill says, "It's very easy to get trick columns that fall down. But when the columns fall, the top of the building must come down. I wanted tons of debris to fall on people and that's hard to do on stage. We tried plastic foam blocks—which was dangerous—and pillows with down and without down, but they fell too fast and didn't look realistic. I got the solution on a Sunday—balloons again. The prop men and I blew up balloons and stuffed them into cloth 'building blocks'—they were soggy enough not to bounce.

"And I had the idea that Samson should kill Abimelech with the jawbone of an ass and not a sword, as usually is done in the opera. We got out the anatomy books and had one made. It looked marvelous but didn't feel right; it didn't seem lethal. So we went to a taxidermist and got a real jawbone of an ass and we use that. It's terribly lethal; one blow could easily kill a man. We had to get a real one to see how true the Bible was."

Merrill's stage direction seems based more on logic than on an attempt to be "different." For instance, he has Samson pick up a huge gold altar in the beginning of the opera, to demonstrate his strength that will later pull down the temple. From the altar, used for sacrificing animals, he picks up the jawbone of the ass—which he will use later.

"I think there's a great deal to be said for logic," Merrill says. "There are very few times when a logical solution based on an analysis and projection of the facts is bad.

"I believe that for people to be afraid of something you have to show the thing to be afraid of. In the 'Andrea Chenier' I did in Verona, we had a huge guillotine on stage and we cranked it up and let it down at one point, with a fearful noise. It really did work. When they saw the second guillotine—they knew what it was.

"I believe in the audience that says, 'Show me.'"

This season at the Met Merrill directed the new productions of "Der Rosenkavalier" and "Il Trovatore." And next season's "Boris Godunov" is "practically staged in my mind."

Merrill's method of working is to start meetings with the stage designer perhaps a year before the production is to be done and the two of them plan what the stage and scenery should be. "Some directors, because of time, other involvements or distance, have to work with somebody who brings them finished models of what the scenery will be. It almost never works."

In the case of the Met's new "Il Trovatore," director Merrill and set designer Attilio Colonello met several times last spring and fall, in New York and Italy. "We discuss for months before we put pencil on paper. All collaboration is disagreement and eventual collaboration. It's based on two people's ideas. If they coincide all the way, it could have been done by either of them."

Don't say I told you—

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that a newspaper reporter gets tired of hearing: "Hi Scoop, what's new?" "I suppose you get a free pass to everything." "I don't mind telling you confidentially, but naturally it's not for publication." "Of course it's not a business you can expect to get rich in, but—"

"We need a cute feature for the arrival of spring next week, Scoop. How about going out and getting an interview with the first robin you see?" "You must lead an exciting life—going to the best fires and everything like that."

"You don't look very busy, Scoop. How about picking up the phone and taking a three-line obit?"

***
"Is your editor mad at you? I haven't seen your byline for three whole days." "Do you have to take subscriptions on your days off?" "I know you newspaper guys don't print half the stuff you really know. Tell me, what do you think we'll do next in Vietnam? And by the way, what's Dick Nixon like—I mean really."

"Don't breathe a word of it to him, or it'll be all over the front page tomorrow."

"If I give you a five-spot, will you keep my name out of the paper? No? Well, how about if I give you a sawbuck?"

"I ain't so mad about you telling the truth about me, but at least you could have spelled my name right."

***
"Don't just sit there staring at your typewriter, Scoop. Write it—don't fight it. If you can't write it, get out of the game."

"I wish I had married a burglar. At least burglars keep regular hours."

"Yeah, I read what you wrote about it, but what's the real lowdown?"

"Take all the time you want to write it, kid. The presses don't have to start rolling for a full two minutes yet."

"First you go for the ones with the cameras, see? Then you hit the guys with the press cards in their hats."

"I guess you do get to meet a lot of interesting people, don't you?"

***
"Why don't you print more good news in the paper?—such as me getting elected assistant secretary of my lodge last week."

Eskimo children find Inspiration in U.S.

MONMOUTH, Ore. (AP) — Fourteen Eskimo children from an island in the Bering Sea saw their first horse in Oregon.

They also got their first look at a tree, a cat, a cow, a pig, a sheep and many other things that don't exist in their arctic homeland. "The first week they were a bit overwhelmed, frightened a little by this strange new world," said Paul Sterling, their teacher.

"Now they say they don't want to go back to their village," he said. "They don't mean it, of course. But they have grown fond of their foster parents and their new friends here."

The Bureau of Indian Affairs flew the children, all under 10 years old, to Monmouth last month where they were enrolled in a six-week course in the campus elementary school of Oregon College of Education.

They come from St. Lawrence Island, 36 miles from the Soviet Union where there is snow, wind, subzero cold and no animals except dogs and reindeer. They lived in one-room homes at Northeast Cape, which has a population of 60. Their fathers hunt seal or walrus when they are not working at the Air Force radar station.

Dr. Paul Jensen, father of the idea, said the bureau wants the children to be challenged.

"In their hunting economy they see no need to study beyond the fourth grade," Jensen said. "This experience may open their eyes to new interests, stimulate them to continue their studies."

Breath tests soso

LONDON (AP) — More than half the 51,403 breath tests given to English and Welsh motorists last year—to measure how much alcohol they had in their blood—showed the drivers had too much to drink. Of the total, 26,415 motorists failed the test, meaning they could lose their licenses for a year, 21,734 passed it and 3,254 refused to blow into the police breath meters.

Everyone has a hit, And Newley has lots

NEW YORK (AP) — "Life is a marvelously wry joke played on people who take it much too seriously," said Anthony Newley, Britain's multifaceted entertainer.

Rivaled in the range of his talents only by Peter Ustinov, a man he admires, Newley can act, sing, compose music or write, direct and produce films.

He does all those things in his latest, "Can Hieronymus Merkin Ever Forget Mercy Humppe and Find True Happiness?" It is an odd and dreamlike mixture of exotica and erotica, made on the island of Malta in 12 weeks at a cost of $1.25 million, that is likely to be acclaimed by the avant-garde and confuse more stolid fans.

"I hope some day to be paid for it," said Tony a bit glumly the other day over a plate of luncheon eggs at the 21 Restaurant.

As is the case of many endowed with comic gifts, Tony's mind flits between moods of gaiety and gloom. Haunted by memories of a childhood spent in bomb-battered wartime England, he feels deeply the rust of this world's touch and the prevalence of death.

"Life is beautiful," he remarked, "but if your American children were brought up with more of a recognition—here nothing ever seems to die—their life would have added dimension it doesn't have now. Now they seem only to be killing time."

"That's why I give my children pets. Observing their natural functions makes them more aware of life and death."

***
 Newley, largely an untaught genius, started acting at 14. He has starred in such pictures as "Oliver Twist," "The World of Sammy Lee," "Dr. Dolittle," and "Sweet November." His musical stage hits include "Stop the World—I Want to Get Off" and "The Roar of the Greasepaint—the Smell of the Crowd."

One of his top songs, "What Kind of Fool Am I?", is reported to have made him financially independent for life.

Tony, married to actress Joan Collins, is 37, dark-haired, blue-eyed and still restless for new fields to try.

Old Red's cold and dead, But we remember when . . .

By JOE WING

NEW YORK (AP) — Old Red is gone.

We traded her in on a new station wagon. Since the new one won't arrive for a month, the garage now stands empty, deserted except for a ghost.

It will be wonderful of course to have a new car. New cars smell good and usually run like a salesman's dream.

But no new car can replace Old Red. Not anyway for six years and 65,000 miles.

***
To the very end, Old Red's engine ran as smooth as a floor demonstrator. After she once got started, that is. But there was an oil leak up front that the mechanic didn't want to fool with, and the transmission didn't have much life expectancy, and the steering gear had never been quite the same since we tangled with that big rock in the road. So we traded in Old Red, including two nearly new tires.

Even in the pride of youth, Old Red never looked much better. Of course the paint had chalked a little, there was a bare spot at the left rear where I had once backed into a barbed wire fence, and a piece of the upholstery was ragged from the attentions of a pet coon. But all in all, she was still a handsome wagon, with clean, straight lines, much handsomer, to my mind than present-day models.

When Old Red first came to our house—we just called her Red then—two of our children were still living at home. They were even more enthusiastic about her than we were—especially Tom who already had his driver's license. One good thing about a son who is using the family car on dates—he keeps it shiny and clean.

As our first station wagon, Old Red lived up to all expectations. We could haul brushwood in her without trouble. No quantity of groceries ever dismayed her. She carried our dinghy to the beach without protest, and hauled back all the driftwood we could lay hands on. We just wondered why we hadn't gone into hock for a station wagon years before, when all the kids were small.

Then it was Ed's turn to get a driver's license and grow up and leave home. It was Old Red of course who hauled him and all his bags and hopes to college. And then, when he got to playing football, it was Old Red who carried us week after week to Williamstown in northwestern Massachusetts. The round trip was nearly 400 miles, but Old Red never once let us down. It got so she almost knew the way with her eyes shut.

***
Those weekend drives, probably, were what did her in. About a year ago she began to falter. For the first time we started pouring money into repairs and upkeep. At last the percentages began to run against her.

So we turned in Old Red. There wasn't much left to her trade-in value. If we'd had a two-car garage, she might be sitting there yet. One of these days, she would have been worth a lot of money, I bet, as an antique car. And our memories would have been kept intact.

Schaefer shifts From TV to film

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Television's latest donation to films is George Schaefer, the multi-Emmy winner who produced or directed 56 Hallmark Hall of Fame Telecasts over a 15-year period.

Schaefer has now made the move to feature films. He directed the just-released "Pendulum" with George Peppard and Jean Seberg and next month begins shooting "Generation," with David Janssen and Carl Reiner.

Thus Schaefer follows the TV-to-film move of John Frankenheimer, Delbert Mann, Arthur Penn, Franklin Schaffner, Jack Smite and a host of others. But most of them made the transition 10 or 15 years ago. Why did Schaefer wait so long?

"Because I had the one setup in television that was ideal," said the director. "With the Hall of Fame, I had complete artistic freedom. I was able to choose from the best of dramatic literature, old and new, and I worked with great casts, Helen Hayes, Lunt and Fontanne, Katherine Cornell, Richard Burton, Charlton Heston, Peter Ustinov, etc.

"The plays appeared before a giant audience of 15 million or so. And I was able to establish my own production company. If other film directors had enjoyed this kind of canvas to paint on, they wouldn't have left television."

Schaefer explained why he finally made the move last year: "The situation at Hallmark changed so that I was no longer dealing with one man but with a committee; and I could no longer find four or five exciting subjects to do each year."

"Pendulum" seemed like a strange choice for Schaefer's debut as a film director. It is a murder-and-chase tale, and he had been identified on television with ancient and modern classics.

"I admit it was the last picture people expected me to do," he remarked. "That's why I chose it. And I must say that my reasoning was found. Even before the picture had been seen, I was receiving quantities of offers for other films."

He is amazed at machinations required to sign star performers.

"I am accustomed to having stars read a television script and say, 'Yes, I'll do it,'" he commented. "But in films the stars have to figure out corporate deals and calculate how the picture would fit into their tax structure."
